SHOP-EARLY IS THE RIGHT THING

Every season the celebration of Christmas grows more elaborate. More presents are bought and the crowds are greater. For two or three weeks before Christmas department stores and other shops do a "capacity business." This intensifies the pressure on merchants. Public opinion more and more frowns on long hours and late work, particularly for women, girls and children, but unless energetic measures are taken thousands of shoppers through thoughtlessness delay their purchases until the very last at the cost of needless strain upon salespeople and the delivery forces.

Faced by this condition a great many stores, in order to handle the business, have reluctantly lengthened the hours of labor for their employees. Authentic records from the lives of salesgirls, delivery boys and the wagon drivers, show that as a result the season of Christmas festival and of charity for the lame, the halt and the blind, reduces to exhaustion and even to illness those who serve the public, seen and unseen.

But the experience of seven years proves that public opinion is increasingly alive to the unnecessary and inhuman nature of the eleventh-hour dash. Through joint efforts of editors, merchants, cartoonists and ministers, millions of customers have been made to realize that they can benefit themselves as well as every one concerned if they will do their Christmas shopping early in the season and early in the day. The call for sympathy for overworked salesgirls and delivery men has produced a genuine response.

SUPERVISORS ON THE DETAIL WORK

Six forest supervisors doing detail work in the local forestry office completed their assignments Saturday and returned to their respective forests. They are: John Raphael of Dixie National forest, headquarters, St. George; W. W. Blakeslee of Santa Rosa National forests, headquarters at Paradise, Nev.; T. J. Collins of the Tolyabe National forest, headquarters, Austin, Nev.; George C. Thompson of Nevada National forest, headquarters, Ely, Nev.; H. A. Bergh of the La Sal forest, headquarters, Montebello, and John A. Pearson of the Salmon National forest, headquarters, Salmon, Ida.

The following forest supervisors have arrived for four weeks' detail work in the local office: George H. Barney, Powell National forest, headquarters, Escalante; Orrin O. Snow, National forest, Panguitch; A. W. Hansen and Deputy Supervisor W. K. Kier of the Manti National forest, headquarters, Ephraim, Carl B. Argenson, Fishlake National forest, headquarters, Salina; Dan S. Pack, Nebo National forest, Nephi; W. S. Anderson, Ashley National forest, headquarters, Vernal; W. I. GREAT RESPECT IS SHOWN THE DEAD

In Five States Tribute to the Memory of David Eccles to Be Paid—Active and Honorary Pallbearers Selected—More Telegrams of Condolence Received—All the Carriages in the City Inadequate to Convey Relatives and Close Friends to the Cemetery.

The David Eccles funeral tomorrow undoubtedly will be one of the largest ever held in the state and more communities and states of the intermountain country than ever before will pause to reflect on the greatness of the man. In five states flags will be at half mast and all the wheels of industry formerly directed by Mr. Eccles in those states will be silenced. At precisely 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, Ogden time, the great factories of Utah and Idaho will close for a period of five minutes; the railroads of Utah and Oregon, formerly operated by Mr. Eccles will cease to run during the five minutes; the coal miners of Rock Springs, Wyoming, will lay down their picks and shovels for five minutes; in Nevada, mining and stock workers under the Eccles interests will stop five minutes; the saw mills and lumber camps of the northwest will cease to work during that same period.

So many people there are who desire to attend the funeral and witness the burial in this city that there are not enough carriages to accommodate them. Every available carriage has been engaged for the funeral and still there are many without carriages. Automobiles will be used.

The Pallbearers.

Pallbearers selected by members of the family are: Active bearers—E. C. Rolapp, William Burton, R. A. Meyer, J. M. Canine, R. B. Porter, E. W. Niles, and W. H. Williams of Ogden; Dr. O. C. Budge, Logan; Fred G. Taylor, Lewiston, Idaho; D. W. Baird, Baker City, Oregon.

Honorary bearers—W. H. Wattle, Joseph Scowcroft, M. S. Browning, John Pingree, Charles H. Barton and W. A. Lark of Ogden; H. S. Young and Joseph Geoghegan of Salt Lake; H. E. Hatch of Logan, and Adam Patterson of Los Angeles.

Condolences.

The following additional telegrams have been received by members of the Eccles family:

"Washington, D. C.—Brother Eccles' sudden call from the activities of a busy life, fills our hearts with sadness. We extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to you and the family in this trying hour. The state will mourn with you as Mr. Eccles' departure is a community calamity."—Joseph Howell.

"Denver, Colo.—We were inexpressibly shocked tonight upon receipt of Utah papers containing the announcement of the death of your honored husband. His career was marvelous and Utah and the west have lost one of their most illustrious citizens. Mrs. Herrick joins me in expressions of love and deepest sympathy."—John Herrick.

"Portland, Oregon.—Mrs. Cornwall joins with me in sending our deepest sympathy to you and yours in the death of your beloved father. I feel as if I have lost a warm personal friend and the best one of our foremost citizens. Send me full particulars surrounding his life for publication in Timberman."—George M. Cornwall.

"Oakley, Idaho.—Accept my heartfelt sympathy for loss of your father and Utah's most useful citizen."—A. L. Wright.

"San Francisco—I only learned to-day of Eccles' sudden death. I wish to express to you and your family my sincere sympathy in your sad bereavement."—P. C. Kittle.

So far no will has been found and thought by those close to the dead financier that he died without providing for the distribution of his property.

A dispatch from Baker City reads: "All mills and railroads here will quit operations for ten minutes during the funeral of David Eccles, the Ogden (Utah) millionaire, formerly a resident of this city."

The banks of this state and others in which Mr. Eccles was interested will close. The street cars in Logan will stop for five minutes. At Baker City and Hood River not a wheel will turn for five minutes on the two railroads of which Mr. Eccles was the president. A delegation of bankers from Salt Lake will come to Ogden tomorrow to attend the funeral with the Ogden Clearing House association.

At the meeting of the city commissioners tonight, resolutions on the death of Mr. Eccles will be adopted and arrangements will be made for attending the funeral in a body. Similar resolutions will be drawn up by the county commissioners, after which they will adjourn. In the two divisions of the Second district court, appropriate resolutions will be spread upon the minutes of the court, and Judge Howell and Harris will adjourn court tomorrow.

Special rates have been offered by all railroads for those who wish to attend the funeral from outside points in Utah and Idaho.

Music for the funeral services will be under the direction of Prof. Joseph Ballantyne and will be as follows:

Solo and chorus—"It Is Not Death to Die," Mrs. Myrtle B. Higley and the Tabernacle choir.

Solo—"The Link Divine," Mrs. Maggie Toot-Browning.

Male Chorus—"Lead Us, O Father," thirty-five pupils of Prof. Ballantyne.

Soprano Solo—"God Knows Best" (composed by Joseph Ballantyne), Mrs. Myrtle B. Higley.

Solo—"Rest Thee, Sad Heart," Melvin Peterson.

Solo and chorus—"One Sweetly Solemn Thought," Elsie Shorten and the Tabernacle choir.

The Ogden Clearing House association appointed a committee composed of A. R. Heywood, R. E. Hoag and A. P. Bigelow, which drew up the following resolutions:

Whereas it has pleased an All-Wise Providence to take from our midst Eccles' leading citizen and financial captain, Hon. David Eccles; and

Whereas it has been ordered that suitable expression be made of the great loss and public grief; now be it

Resolved, by the Ogden Clearing House association that, while obediently bowing to the hand of our Divine Father, we testify to the great worth and distinguished character of the deceased. By his commanding genius as a man of affairs he beamed into conspicuous greatness an array of industrial and fiscal institutions that arrested the attention of the country. His magic touch breathed life into legitimate promotions, and his dynamic energy and far-seeing courage driven on with an executive ability that was a marvel to an intelligent public produced results that not only brought rich rewards, but also built up and developed the intermountain section.

To those who come after him we call attention that the people of three great states and more assemble to pay honor to his memory and to register a page in the history of time that shall never grow dim or become effaced.

The laurels which rightly belong on his brow are and shall be placed there by his fellow townsmen, who, appreciating what he has done for the upbuilding of Ogden and the west, record their testimony with grateful and continuing appreciation.

December 9, 1912.
At a special meeting held in the Weber Academy last evening, the board of education of that institution, of which Mr. Eccles was a member, adopted the following resolutions:

In the midst of life's activities, on the night of December 5, 1912, in Salt Lake City, our beloved brother and fellow worker, David Eccles, suddenly received and immediately answered the last earthly summons. His day's work being done, he fain would have come home to the bosom of his family for needed rest and peace; but that night his life's mission was also completed, and unseen messengers guided his spirit to its heavenly home. Unexpected, unheralded, almost like the lightning's flash came the call of death. Almost instantaneous and unhesitating seemed our brother's response. He loved life and anticipated the enjoyment of many more active years; yet so productive and useful has his life been that he was ready to go when he did.

Great soul that he was, he lived so that he will be missed. His keen perception, his ability to see the reality of things, however small or however gigantic, his sense of justice, his desire to benefit his fellow men by establishing lucrative enterprises, his faithfulness to his friends, his devotion as a husband and father, his steadfastness to his testimony to the truth of the gospel—these are some of the virtues which endeared himself to us. His services as a member of this board has been of inestimable worth. In council we have admired his genius, profited by his judgment, been encouraged by his cheerfulness, and felt secure in planning with him the future of our school. Yes, we shall miss him, and so will the intermountain west, but none will sense so keenly his death as will his beloved families.

Therefore, be it resolved by this board in meeting assembled that in the death of Hon. David Eccles the Weber academy in connection with the entire community has suffered a great loss.

And, be it further resolved, that we extend our sincerest and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved families and pray that He who is the Resurrection and the Life may guide and comfort them always, and supplant their poignant grief with the assurance that their husband and father "is not dead, but sleeping," and that though he did not have time to say, "good night," in some brighter clime he will bid them "good morning."

Board of Directors.

The board of governors of the Salt Lake Commercial club issued the following resolution Saturday:

That in the death of David Eccles the Commercial club has lost one of its most valued members and that the state of Utah one of its foremost citizens.

In the organization of industries and in the development of our resources he was always in the front rank. His fortune has been invested at home and has been used freely in the upbuilding of this commonwealth.

To the bereaved family the Commercial club extends its sincere condolence and sympathy.

MAKING READY FOR "BEN-HUR"

Orpheum Stage to Undergo Extensive Alterations—Wrights' Offer Feature Sale.

The representative of the "Ben-Hur" company, Klaw & Erlanger's big Biblical production, is in the city preparing the way for the advent of a force of men who will arrive in Ogden tomorrow to remodel the stage of the Orpheum theater and install some of the heavy mechanical devices necessary for an adequate presentation of the play.

The work will be under the personal supervision of Philip Lynch, who has assisted in putting on "Ben-Hur" at the Drury theater in London, England, and has set more big productions than any other man on earth. The heavy paraphernalia, especially for the race scene is carried in duplicate, so that it can be installed in one theater, while the show uses one set in another city. Mr. Lynch will bring a 60-foot baggage carload of "props" together with a force of stage carpenters and an electrician.

Largest Theatrical Train.

The "Ben-Hur" production travels like a circus. In fact, it is as large as some circuses. Their special train is the largest and most comprehensive touring America. It will arrive in Ogden over the Union Pacific next Monday morning, when, no doubt, hundreds will be on hand to witness the unloading of the attraction. One Arms palace car transports eighteen head of horses and a couple of camels. While several Pullmans and day coaches carry the big company of players.

Horse's Remarkable Record.

One of the horses in the "Ben-Hur" company, "Monk" by name, has been in the production for the past fourteen years and during that time has won more races than those in a string of a stable. It is said that he has been the victor in more than 3,000 races. The chariot race is one of the most realistic scenes presented upon the stage today. The horses actually run at breakneck speed, but the mechanical device prevents them from dashing from the stage.

Curtain Exactly at 5 O'Clock.

An important feature in regard to the "Ben-Hur" performance is the time of rising of the curtain, which is precisely at 5 o'clock. No one is seated before the conclusion of the prelude, "The Star of Bethlehem," which is one of the most beautiful and attractive parts of the play.

No doubt during the engagement of the "Ben-Hur" company Ogden will entertain hundreds of visitors, as the play has been advertised within a radius of 40 miles of the city and the various railroads are offering excursion rates in connection with the "Ben-Hur" engagement. Wrights' big department store is doing the unusual thing of advertising "Ben-Hur" feature sales.

The seat sale opens next Thursday morning. No telephone orders will be taken and no seats laid aside. (Advertisement)

Telling the Bees.

The custom of "telling the bees" is often referred to by those interested in curious happenings. In some parts of England it has always been the habit to inform the bees whenever there is a death in the family, particularly when it is that of the master or mistress.

Some one raps upon the board supporting the hives and says: "Mourn with us, master (or mistress) of the house is dead."

It is thought that if this duty is neglected the bees will die; and many old servants are fond of telling how the bees pine away when no one thinks to give them the sad message.

Worth of Clothes.

The influence of clothes must continue to be, as it has been from the beginning of history, either "sacred or profane," a foremost factor in those forces by which man's destiny is guided. His health and comfort, aims and purposes, social standing and business prosperity; everything indeed that makes his life worth living may be affected by it in directions never dreamed of by the tailor who, if he does not actually make the man, is largely instrumental in making him what he is.—Sartorial Art Journal.

CROWDS INVADE

From Early Morning Till Closing Time
Saturday Night.

This Removal Sale was one busy spot. A good many hundred dollars worth of good merchandise went out. At times it looked as though the doors would have to be closed.

It would be the height of folly to make a purchase in these lines before investigating this sale. Remember that the stocks are all fresh and new. The New Christmas stocks have just arrived—and without a single exception the Removal Sale Prices apply to the entire stock. Anything that the man or boy wears may be bought here for a great deal less. The sale begins again tomorrow morning. Come early and share the savings.
